EVENING WEDDING IS BRILLIANT FUNCTION

Miss Naomi Miller Becomes The Bride of R. Hughes Rush at Washington—Couple Leave on Southern Trip—To be Absent a Month.

Thursday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John Baird Miller of Oak Grove, Washington, was solemnized the marriage of her daughter, Miss Naomi Miller and R. Hughes Rush, son of Mrs. Martha Josephine Rush of Pittsburg, a prominent banker of Charleroi. The ceremony was impressive and beautiful. The ring ceremony was used by the officiating clergyman, the Rev. Dr. R. J. Miller of North Side, Pittsburg, a cousin of the bride's mother. The service was read in the presence of about 100 guests among them former Governor John K. Tener and Mrs. Tener of Philadelphia. Guests were also present from Harrisburg, New York, Chicago, Pittsburg and points in West Virginia.

At 7:30 o'clock the bridal party entered the drawing room while Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Vaught's orchestra. The ceremony was performed before a bank of palms and ferns. The aisle leading to the altar was formed by tall standards filled with pink roses linked by white ribbons. The Miller home was attractively decorated in flowers throughout. The bride was attired in white satins with an over dress of tulle trimmed with rose point lace. This lace was of an old and costly style being a family heirloom. Miss Miller wore a veil of the same material as her over dress which was caught to her coiffure with pearls and real orange blossoms, a gift from California. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. She wore the groom's gift a diamond pin set in platinum. The bride was given away by her mother who wore a gown of black and white lace trimmed with black jet. The other members of the bridal party were Miss Ethelyn McKinley of Washington as maid of honor, Mrs. Harriette Mitchell of Belle Vernon, as matron of honor, and William Henderson of McKeesport, who acted as Mr. Rush's best man. Miss McKinley wore pink taffeta trimmed in silver lace and silver slippers. She carried sweet peas tied with silver tulle. Mrs.

NINETY-THREE CHICKENS VANISH IN NIGHT RAIDS

Deemston and Centerville Again Aroused by Visits of Mysterious Midnight Marauders Who Leave No Clew—Drove in Wagon.

That the destitution in the district south of Beallsville place is even worse than has heretofore been guessed seems to be borne out by late happenings which come as an apparent sequel to the calf slaughtering affair of Tuesday night.

Marauders stole 30 chickens from the farm of George Bigler, of Deemston, and 63 members of the feathered flock belonging to Ellsworth Lewis of Centerville. The thieves, as in the case of the calf affair came in a wagon and the tracks of the vehicle were in all instances overrun and lost to view. It is not known whether t he two chicken thefts were committed by the same persons, although this is hardly thought likely.

No trace was left of the purloiners of the fowls. When the calf belonging to Frank L. Hastings was slaughtered a note was left with a message to the effect that the meat was needed for food and that the calf would be paid for as soon as it was possible to do so. In the chicken thieving no note was left but it is generally believed the chickens were taken for the relief of hunger and that the intent was not purely criminal.

A strenuous effort is being made to locate the offenders not simply to bring them under the law but also through them to find just how bad conditions really are.

MINGES TAKES TO THE FIRING LIN

Evangelistic Sharpshooter Pours Hot Shot Into Camp of Enemy

THEME IS "SHARPSHOOTERS"

Thursday Night Services Bring Out Good-Sized Crowd—Sermon Topic For Tonight. According to Announcement is "Knockers."

Aim was perfect and there wasn't any missing of shots at the tabernacle Thursday night when Evangelist William J. Minges took the firing line. "Sharpshooters" was the subject of Evangelist Minges' sermon. Personal workers for souls for God's kingdom were given inspiration, when they were referred to as sharpshooters.

The service Thursday night brought out a large crowd in spite of the inclement weather and a good-sized chorus choir was there to sing under the capable direction of song-leader G. P. Rockwell. Rev. E. N. Duty, pastor of the First Christian church and Rev. W. G. Carl, pastor of the First Baptist church as well as members of the evangelistic party had their duties to perform and the service was a good one.

A prayer meeting will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the office of Henry Sheets on the corner of Fifth street and Fallowfield avenue. It will be a meeting chiefly for business men and will be the only prayer meeting of tomorrow morning. At noon today a shop meeting was conducted at the Pittsburg Steel company's mill at Monessen.

Tonight is expected to be a big meeting. Evangelist Minges will preach on "Knockers."

The synopsis of Thursday's sermon follows:

Sharpshooters.

Evangelist Minges taking for his subject "sharpshooters," explained by saying that a snarpshooter was one who picked his man and didn't give up until he got him. He said:

A personal worker is a sharpshooter. Sharpshooters are after the leaders. Andrew was a great success. He captured his brother, Simon Peter, and brought him to Christ. When he found Chirst he didn't send word around to Peter but he went and got him himself. To find Christ is a rich find. Many a man has lost his life seeking gold, but he that findeth Christ findeth life. Andrew not only found life but he found his brother and brought him to Christ. There are many beautiful scenes in this world but to my mind the most beautifful scene is to see someone bringing a soul to Christ. If I had to take my choice between preaching and personal work, I would give up preaching and go out after souls. Better win one soul to Christ and then go home to glory than to be a lazy Christian and lose your own soul. I wouldn't give two cents for a man's chances for heaven, who has never won a soul to Christ. Many a man is going about blowing about his experience but the man who has not won some soul through personal work hasn't had the first taste of real joy. There are souls all around us who need a kind word of encouragement. When Jesus Christ was on

TWO KINDS OF UNEMPLOYED.

According to the New York papers a call has gone forth to the Industrial Workers of the World throughout the country to march on the metropolis and make a characteristic demonstration of the unemployed. The event is timed to take place just before the release from jail of Tannerbaum the agitator who escorted his followers into churches demanding food and shelter. It is said that apostles of discontent are now busy in the west drumming up recruits and that among the plans is one of raiding New York restaurants to show the desperate state of alleged hungry men. Not only a repetition of the disorderly scenes of last year, but worse is promised, says the Pittsburg Gazette Times.

When the former reign of lawlessness culminated in the accidental explosion in atonement of bombs ostensibly designed for the terrorist propoganda, it was thought that the aroused state of public sentiment spurring the authorities to action would prevent any recurrence of the outrages for a long time to come, but evidently these foes of society are not so easily disposed of as that. But even among the chronically disaffected this would appear to be the most unpropitous moment for preaching the gospel of violence and anarchism in the metropolis. While unemployment and destitution are widespread there has rarely been a time in that city when so many agencies for aiding the unfortunate were in operation. The municipal government has taken the question of relief in hand and enlisted the active services of large numbers of private citizens who are accuctomed to solving big problems. In addition many unofficial organizations have been formed to cope with the emergency and it cannot be said that the community is insensible to the extraordinary situation.

A unique example of self help and one which should shame the professional idlers who are seeking to promote disorder is afforded by the so-called hoboes who have started the "Hotel de Gink." Here in a disused municipal building they have fitted up lodgings for themselves and from these headquarters they issue forth every morning to perform work that has been freely offered since their necessities have become known. Instead of declaring war on society, threatening violence and scheming to seize the living the world owes them, these men temporarily out of regular employment have buckled down to the job of doing the first honest work they can find, even if not entirely satisfactory, and they are making good. They deserve and have received public support. The professional rowdies bent on making trouble deserve something quite different and they are likely to get it.

Electric Sparks

A Washington boy ran away and was found in West Alexander. If that's his idea of the metropolis, he's reckless.

Mean Brute!

"A social worker claims that women ought to receive men's wages," said Mrs. Gabb, as she looked up from the paper. "And I believe it would only be right."

"That's the main reason why a woman marries a man, isn't it?" growled Mr. Gabb.

MILITARY SAPPING

DITCHES DUG BY PEASANTS.

In the Middle Ages Civilians Were Forced to Do the Labor to Which Soldiers Would Not Stoop—Sappers and Miners and Their Successors.

In stories and reports of modern battles the work of the sappers is often mentioned. "To sap" or "sapping" was an early way of approaching a strongly fortified position by means of a ditch. It was also a very early form of trench work. The fortified positions against which saps were employed were the stone walls of castles or of cities.

When the making of cannon had not progressed so far that solid shot could breach stone walls, but when cannon were powerful enough to keep armed men at bay or to destroy them, it became necessary to make an approach to the walled position in a way which was difficult to attack successfully and for which at that time no way of checkmating had been thought of by the defenders. A narrow ditch was dug in the direction of the wall to be assailed. This ditch, which was wide enough for one man to dig in, was called a sap, the digger a sapper, and the end of the ditch toward the enemy was the saphead. As the leading sapper dug forward he protected himself and the saphead in various ways, usually by pushing a screen ahead of him. This screen was of various forms, a bag of sand or a sheet of metal inclined to deflect arrows or gun shots.

When the saphead had reached the desired point the ditch would be widened, the excavated earth forming a parapet on each side, and the guns would be brought so close to the wall that they could not be reached by guns mounted on the wall, for in the times in which these conditions prevailed walls were high and cannon crude and they could not be sufficiently depressed to reach an enemy at the foot of the wall.

Sapping was usually done by peasants impressed or hired for that service, because soldiers in the armies of the middle ages were more skillful with weapons than with tools and the work of digging trenches was beneath their dignity, while it also savored of a disinclination to close with the enemy, even though that enemy was behind stone walls with cannon—cannon at which men armed with modern weapons would smile, but which in their day were weapons of great effect.

Vauban, the great military engineer, refined sapping and brought it into a system by which any fortified place could be approached, reached, mined and breached.

These saps after awhile were dug in a number of ways. Many forms of the approach trench were devised. Uncovered trenches were cut forward, deflected at right angles and then cut forward to be again deflected further along, each of these deflections from the straight course of the trench forming a transverse for the protection of the trench. Some trenches were roofed in with timber and earth as they were cut forward, thus forming a bombproof covered way. Some saps were cut or dug in the fashion of a tunnel, the surface of the earth not being disturbed at all. Double saps or numerous parallel saps were dug close up to the position to be attacked.

Mining of castle and city walls or city gates is as old as the use of gunpowder in war, and "undermining" of walls was practiced in war before the use of gunpowder. When sapping had become systematized and generally employed in offensive operations against fortified positions the military work of sapping and mining was combined and instead of being done by peasants or "civilian" labor was committed to special troops. These troops became adept in this important work, and because of the extra labor involved and the hazard of this duty these, called sappers and miners, were given higher pay than other troops.

As the years and the centuries went by other duties were put upon these troops—erection of field fortifications, erection of many forms of obstacles to impede an aggressive enemy and hold him under fire at a known range, destruction of bridges, construction of bridges, demolition of buildings and many other things. Gradually the sappers and miners' duties became greatly enlarged and refined, and in many armies they came to be called engineers.

In all armies every soldier today does work that formerly fell to the laboring and hard working sappers. Every soldier today knows how to handle a pick and spade as well as to shoot a rifle, pistol, magazine gun or cannon. All soldiers now dig trenches, gun pits and the like, but construction work, requiring higher technical training, is done by the engineers, successors to the sappers of old. In many kinds of construction the engineers may be aided by troops of other branches and by civilians, hired or impressed.—Washington Star.

AMONG THE THEATRES

COYLE—CHARLEROI.

"The Girl of the Golden West," one of the most interesting and fascinating stories of the west was shown as the Paramount attraction at the Coyle theatre Tuesday. It depicted the playing of a game of cards between the girl who kept a mining camp saloon and the gambler sheriff for the life of a road agent, the girls' lover. On Thursday "The Italian" was shown. This picture of intense human interest is a simple narrative of a poor Italian, his love for a girl of his native country and their experiences in this country. George Beban was presented in the leading role as Beppo, the Italian. Announcements are being made of "Cabiria" an eleven reel picture which comes to the Coyle next Wednesday. This picture has been shown in New York for a long run and is booked for a run in one of the leading theatres in Pittsburg. Some of the most marvelous feats ever seen on the screen are shown in this production.

PALACE—CHARLEROI.

On Monday at the Palace theatre "The Avalanche" a five part picture with Catherine Countiss in the leading role was shown. The picture was an interesting story centered around the busy business district of New York. The Schubert attraction on Wednesday was "The Pit." In this excellent photoplay was presented Wilton Lackaye in the leading role. The theme taken up was that of a man who paid more attention to his business matters than his wife, thus causing unpleasant results. The vaudeville program for the week is also pleasing. Belmont and Fulton are a team of clever harpists, singers and whistlers. They have played at many large theatres both in this country and abroad and also have made many singing and whistling records for victrolas. Carl Zeinda presents a novelty act and Al and Grace Harris entertain with a comedy number.

LYRIC—CHARLEROI

Clothes do not make the man, but they help to make him and have a lot to do with woman's tastes. How this all happens was told in an interesting drama of comedy parts at the Lyric theatre this week, in "A Question of Clothes." The picture, a Vitagraph was shown on Thursday evening, together with a three-reel Vitagraph, "The Evil Men Do," with Maurice Costello in the leading role. On Monday night "The Red Cross Nurse," in three reels was an interesting pict u re. A Lubin comedy, "The Fresh Air Cure," with lots of action was likewise interesting. On Tuesday evening a one-reel Biograph, "The Bond Sinister" was a stirring feature. A Vitagraph picture, "Wanted a Nurse," with Sidney Drew in the leading role was a splendid comedy. Wednesday's big production was "Any Woman's Choice," a two-reel Essanay with Francis X. Bushman in the leading role.

STAR—CHARLEROI.

What might be considered the leading feature of this week at the Star theatre was "The Princess of Bagdad," pictured by a new film company the Keno. It was a marvelous production. Another feature of much interest was that of "Europe as it is," presented on Tuesday night to a good-sized audience. This was of course a war picture. A Warner feature of Wednesday evening was that of "Everyone," a religious drama. So far the Star has enjoyed a good run of pictures for the week, and good films are booked ahead. The Friday feature is "The Littlest Rebel," one of the best ever shown here. Saturday's feature is "The Range Man." Next week will be the last under the present management, the controlling interest having been sold. H. B. King, manager will go to Syracuse, N. Y. to take a position at the Princess Theatre.

For restaurant use there has been invented a spoon with a detachable bowl of paper or fibre, to be thrown away after use, the handle being fitted to another bowl.

Discuss the Full Crew Laws with Your Elected Representatives

The twenty-one railroads of Pennsylvania and New Jersey earnestly request that the people of those States have a heart-to-heart talk with their elected representatives at Harrisburg and Trenton, regarding the existing Full Crew Laws.

In making this request, the railroads ask only that the people—after giving the subject serious thought and due consideration—give their views to their district representatives and ask them where they stand on the matter.

The railroads merely request the people to discuss the subject sanely, dispassionately, without fear, favor, bias, or prejudice. They have already submitted the case to the court of public opinion. Whether the Full Crew Laws shall continue in force or be repealed is a question that the people can decide.

FULL CREW LAWS HURT GRANGERS

Lack of Labor Keeps Farmers From Availing of Opportunities.

Philadelphia, Feb. 26.

R. L. O'Donnel, chairman of the executive committee of the associated railroads, seeking support of the grange organizations of Pennsylvania and New Jersey in effecting repeal of the Full Crew Laws of those states, has addressed a personal letter to about 50,000 farmers, in which he sets forth chief reasons for repeal.

Mr. O'Donnel cites the stand taken against Full Crew measures by the grangers of Texas, Missouri and New York. The farmers, he asserts, should help secure repeal of those laws in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, not only because they are fundamentally bad legislation, and as such opposed to good government, but also because the farmers are confronted with labor problems which such laws make more difficult.

"This year," the letter reads in part, "because of the higher prices for farm produce, there is a call for increased plantings, and the greatest drawback you have in taking advantage of your opportunity this year is lack of labor.

"The men employed as a result of these laws have usually come from the farm, naturally seeking the higher pay which the railroads are obliged to give.

"This creation of extra jobs has called for the expenditure of over $2,000,000 a year by railroads in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, which must be borne indirectly by the shippers. It has taken away from the railroads money which was needed for elimination of grade crossings, purchase of refrigerator and stock cars, construction of sidings in producing territory, and from general development work.

"There is no purpose to lay off men whose services are necessary to adequately man trains: the object is merely to eliminate men for whom there is no real necessity and for whom jobs exist only by edict of law."

Many Recoveries From Lung Trouble

Eckman's Alterative has restored to health many sufferers from lung trouble. Read what it did in this case:—

Wilmington, Del.

"Gentlemen:—In January, 1908, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs. My physician, a leading practitioner, said that it was lung trouble. I got very weak. C. A. Lippincott, of Lippincott's Department Store, Wilmington, Del., recommended Eckman's Alterative that had done great good. I began taking it at once. I continued faithfully, using no other remedy, and finally noticed the clearing of the lungs. I now have no trouble with my lungs. I firmly believe Eckman's Alterative saved my life." (Abbreviated.)

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. RICHMOND, 84 Progress Avenue, Providence, R.I.

From Mrs. Maria Irwin, Peru, N.Y.

PERU, N.Y.—"Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was very irregular and had much pain. I had lost three children, and felt worn out all the time. This splendid medicine helped me as nothing else had done, and I am thankful every day that I took it."—Mrs. MARIA IRWIN, R.F.D. 1, Peru, N.Y.

From Mrs. Jane D. Duncan, W. Quincy, Mass.

SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living."—Mrs. JANE D. DUNCAN, Forest Avenue, West Quincy, Mass.

MYSTERY NOISES.

Of Unknown Origin, They Sound Like Muffled Thunder.

COMMON IN THE OLD WORLD.

These Curious Boomings, That Puzzle Science, Heard at Times From Australia to Ireland, Are Akin to the "Moodus Noises" of Connecticut.

It is a hot and tranquil summer afternoon on the Belgian coast in time of peace. Strolling along the shore you are startled by a muffled detonation that seems to come from somewhere far out at sea. Can it be thunder? There is not a cloud in the sky, and you remember that thunder is rarely audible at a greater distance than fifteen miles. A man-of-war at target practice, perhaps—far in the offing. At this point your Belgian friend explains. It was the "mistpoeffer," he says, and a sign that the weather will continue fair.

But what is the mistpoeffer? If you can answer that question you can also explain the mysterious Barisal guns of India (Barisal is the name of a town in the Ganges delta), which have puzzled scientific men for half a century. You can explain also the strange rumblings that in certain parts of Italy seem to come from nowhere in particular and are known to the peasantry under forty or more local names, the desert sound of the Australian wilderness, the water guns of Lough Neagh in Ireland and the aerial detonations that occasionally startle Californians during the warm season.

For example, in September, 1896, to quote the Santa Rosa Republican, "a tremendous explosion, presumably in the air, occurred near Cazadero. It was heard by the dwellers of the mountain region over an area of 900 square miles."

All noises of this kind resembling thunder, but not traceable to that or any other known agency, are now generally called in scientific literature brontidi, a name first used by Professor Tito Alippi, who has made a special study of these phenomena in Italy.

The "Moodus noises," familiar to old residents of Moodus and East Haddam, Conn., are probably kindred phenomena, although they seem to be somewhat more definitely associated with subterranean earth shocks than are typical brontidi, and the same may be said of the gouffre of Hajti, which—at least in some cases—is easily recognized as of subterranean origin.

Although systematic investigations of brontidi are of recent date, occurrences of the phenomena have been recorded from early times. Lord Bacon mentions "an extraordinary noise in the sky when there is no thunder," and similar sounds were known to Humboldt and Boussingault. Captain Sturt, a pioneer explorer of Australia, wrote in 1829:

"About 3 p. m. of Feb. 7 (during the Australian summer) Mr. Hume and I were occupied tracing the chart upon the ground. The day had been remarkably fine. There was not a cloud in the heavens nor a breath of air to be felt. On a sudden we heard what seemed to be the report of a gun fired at the distance of between five and six miles. It was not the hollow sound of an earthly explosion or the sharp crackling noise of falling timber, but in every way resembled the discharge of a heavy piece of ordnance.

"No one was certain whence the sound proceeded. Both Mr. Hume and myself thought it came from the north west. I sent one of the men up a tree but he could observe nothing unusual. The country round him appeared equally flat on all sides and thickly wooded. Whatever occasioned the report, it made a strong impression on all of us, and to this day such a sound in such a situation is a matter of mystery to me."

Science has not fully solved the mystery of brontidi, but it can hardly be doubted that the origin of these sounds is really subterranean. From a focus far underground the jar of settling rocks sends vibrations to the surface—not at one spot, but over a wide area. Then if the overlying air is calm and homogeneous it also is set in vibration, and if the vibrations are of the right period to be audible the result is a booming sound of altogether indefinite location. It is simply "in the air."—Youth's Companion.

French Officers Made Thrifty.

The French army officer has to be a thrifty man to make ends meet on his salary of a very few francs a day, and borrowing or running into debt is an offense against military law. An officer convicted of debt is suspended by the war office for three years, and at the end of that time his reinstatement or dismissal from the service is decided by a kind of court martial, comprising five officers of his corps, one of them of his own rank.

Antiquity of Tin.

We find that brass, and consequently tin, existed in Tyre, the great seaport town of the Phoenicians, on the coast of Syria, about 1000 B. C. They are frequently referred to in all works relating to tin or to Cornwall. The Phoenicians were merchants and carried on an important trade from the ports of Tyre and Sidon. These cities rivaled each other in magnitude, fame and antiquity.

A REMEDY FOR BRONCHIAL COLDS

Philadelphia Man Tells How He Treated a Severe Case With Vinol and the Successful Result.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"Last Fall I was troubled with a very severe bronchial cold with very bad effects from it, headaches, backaches, and sick to my stomach. I was so bad I became alarmed and tried several medicines, also a doctor, but did not get any relief. One of the men where I am employed asked me to try Vinol, saying it cured his worst colds. I did so, and in a very short time received the relief which I craved. Now I am enjoying perfect health, and recommend Vinol to be all that is claimed for it."—JACK C. SINGLETON, Philadelphia, Pa.

When we tell you that Vinol is the best remedy in all our large stock for chronic colds, coughs and bronchitis there is no excuse for letting a cough or cold hang on for months and even years.

It is the curative medicinal elements of the cod's livers, combined with blood making and strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol which makes it so successful in removing chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis, after other medicines fail.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding your money will be returned if it fails to help you.

ALVIN—PITTSBURG.

De Wolf Hopper and the world famous Gilbert and Sulivan Opera Company, fresh from a triumphant engagement at the Auditorium Theatre Chicago and en route to New York for their annual season at the Casino Theatre there, come to the Alvin Theater, Pittsburg, on Monday, March 1, for a series of spectacular revivals of the best comic operas ever written to be sung in the English language. On Monday, Tuesday and Saturday nights and at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees he will be seen as the unhappy and distrangled Ko-Ko in what is everywhere declared to be the most pretentious presentation of "The Mikado" ever given in this country. On Wednesday night only he will be seen as the Lord Chancellor in the ever delightful "Isolanthe" and on Thursday and Friday nights he will be seen as the Sergeant of Police in "The Pirates of Penzance."

The Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company is everywhere recognized as the most perfectly balanced permanent light operatic organization heard in the United States since the famous Bostonians were in the first flush of their great success.

GRAND—PITTSBURG.

Gertrude Hoffman, America's most versatile artist, will be the extraordinary attraction in vaudeville at the Grand Opera House for one week beginning next Monday afternoon, March 1. Miss Hoffman will appear at the head of her own Revue, a gorgeous conception in twelve scenes with a company of 40 performers. Among the other interesting announcements for the forthcoming week at the Grand Opera House is that of the engagement of Frances Norstrom, a former leading woman of the Davis Players, who, with William Pinkham and Company, will play her own quaint comedy in one act entitled "All Wrong." In "All Wrong" she is credited with a very amusing and worthy playlet. Mr. Hymack, the chameleon comedian, will play "At Missit Junction" an odd conceit which gives him opportunity to show his remarkable ability of changing costumes. Other players will contribute their own unique personalities and talents to a program which bids fair to eclipse all that have preceeded it.

earth, the fallen women and the vilest sinners came to him. He pardoned them and gave them comfort.

The church in the world today represents the body of Christ, but a fallen woman would rather take two ounces of carbolic acid, than to tell her troubles and bring her burdens to a church member. We have become too Pharisaicle. We strut around with our self-righteous rags, and scoff at those who fall by the wayside, while Jesus would sit down and speak words of comfort to the outcast. This cursed double standard is sending thousands to prediction. There are ten fallen men in this city to every fallen woman. The day has come when a woman who makes a mistake should be helped as well as the man. You say that you haven't time. A section hand with a red shirt stopped work to tell a little straight-haired gypsy boy about Christ and the little boy turned out to be Gypsy Smith. He has since set the world on fire for Christ.

February and March Bring Out Unsightly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

The woman with tender skin dreads February and March because they are likely to cover her face with ugly freckles. No matter how thick her veil the sun and winds have a strong tendency to make her freckle.

Fortunately for her peace of mind the recent discovery of a new prescription, othine—double strength, makes it possible for even those most susceptible to freckles to keep their skin clear and white. No matter how stubborn a case of freckles you have, the double strength othine should remove them.

Human life is the same everywhere If we could but get at the truth we should find that all the tragedy and comedy of Shakespeare have been reproduced in this little village. God has made all of one blood. What is true of one man is in some sort true of another. Manifestations may differ, but the essential elements and springs of action are the same.—Whittier.

AERIAL TRAIL BREAKING.

Amazing Speed and Endurance of the Wild Swan In Flight.

It is impossible for one who has seen only the common mute swans floating about in the artificial lakes of city parks to imagine the grandeur of a flock of the great whistlers in their wild state. In "Wild Life and the Camera" Mr. A. R. Dugmore says the sight is one of the most impressive in nature. As the huge birds rise into the air it seems as if an aerial regatta were being sailed overhead, the swans, each with a wing spread of six or seven feet, moving like yachts under full sail.

Once the swans are fairly under way their speed is amazing, nearly a hundred miles an hour, and that, too, with no apparent effort, for the slow wing motion is very deceiving. Their endurance is as surprising as their speed, for they are said to travel a thousand miles without alighting.

The flocks are usually led by an old and experienced swan, and it is said that as one becomes tired of leading, or it might be called aerial trail breaking, his place is taken by another whose strength is equal to the task, and so they continue until they reach their destination, the southern feeding grounds of the winter or the northern breeding places of the summer. Occasionally they stop to rest in the region of the great lakes. Not many years ago, while on their way north, a large number stopped above Niagara falls, and more than a hundred were by some extraordinary mischance carried over the falls and killed in the surging waters.

Whether the swans prepare in any special way for their southward journey is not known, but before starting north they indulge in the curious habit known as "ballasting"—that is to say, they eat great quantities of sand, for what purpose no one knows.

In the faraway Arctic ocean is their breeding place, and it is believed that they mate for life. As with so many of the water birds, the swans protect their eggs with a covering of down scratched from their own breasts, so that when the birds leave the nest the two to six large, yellowish eggs are hidden from the eyes of possible thieves and protected against any sudden changes of temperature.

It is many years before the swans are clothed in the feathers of immaculate whiteness that make them such conspicuous objects of beauty. Not indeed, until the fifth year does all trace of gray disappear. Their first feathers are entirely gray. Gradually they lighten, becoming mottled with white, the neck and head remaining gray until after the body is completely white.

What Shell Fire Is Like.

I have read many attempts to describe shell fire in a battle, but not one to equal the easy description of this young officer, who does not pretend to be a stylist. Listen:

"You hear a boom miles away, hardly audible in the distance. Then a faint sigh, gradually rising to a scream as the shell whizzes toward you. Then a flash, an immense crash and the air is filled with thousands of bullets and jagged lumps of iron, each making a different sort of shrieking noise. Then phit-phit-phit everywhere as they hit the ground.

"This is shrapnel."—London Sketch.

A Regular Gadder.

A lady bought some furniture at an auction sale in Glasgow the other day. On paying the porter she remarked:

"Had I known how dirty that furniture was I would not have bought it."

"Weel, ma'am," replied the porter, "it wis the dirtiest hoose I ever saw; but, there, whit cud ye expect—the mistrees wis only at hame every Tuesday. Ah ken it fer a fac', 'cause I read it on a caird I gat in that drawer there."—Glasgow News.

The Sick Man of the East.

The phrase "the sick man of the east" originated in a speech of Czar Nicholas to the British charge d'affaires at St. Petersburg at the time of the Crimean war. He said: "We have on our hands a sick man, a very sick man. It would be a great misfortune if one of these days he should slip away from us before the necessary arrangements have been made."—Argonaut.

Perfect Happiness.

Grubbs—What is your idea of perfect happiness? Stubbs—Well, if my wife would stop telling me what she thinks of me, and I had the privilege of telling my respected employer what I think of him it would seem about right.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The Man and the Machine.

"How many votes did you get?"

"Not nearly as many as the other fellow," said the man who is always philosophical. "You see, I had to depend entirely on my own efforts for my votes. His were machine made."—Washington Star.

Consistent.

Brown—Why is your daughter going to talk against the permanence of a republic in that college debate? Smith—Because she thought the advocacy of a republic would not go well with her new empire gown.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Perfectly Proper.

"I am afraid this company is doing business on an inflated capital."

"Yes, but then it deals in automobile tires."—Baltimore American.

Take care that no one hates you justly.—Syrus.

What a Dreadnought Costs.

Some idea of the fighting power of a Dreadnought may be gathered from the fact that the extreme range of its guns is twenty-five miles, while they can be very effective at a range of twelve miles. They are most deadly however, at a range of between five or six miles.

The twelve inch gun of a Dreadnought is fifty feet long and if set up on end would be higher than many a country church tower. The cost of each gun is about £10,000, while each time it is fired £100 vanishes into the air.

As a protection against the guns of the enemy a Dreadnought is covered with armor costing £120 per ton, and as something like 4,800 tons are used in covering the vessel this means an expenditure of close upon £600,000.

Boilers and machinery at £225,000, motor and steamboats at £8,000, torpedo tubes at £3,000 each and torpedoes at £500 each, and £50,000 for searchlights and electrical fittings are other items in the bill which go to make a Dreadnought the costliest vessel afloat.—Pearson's.

Bees and the Kilt.

In his book, "Forty-one Years in India," Lord Roberts tells the following amusing story:

"A curious incident happened at the Alambagh. I was employed inside the inclosure when all at once I heard a noise and commotion some little distance off. Getting on to the roof, I looked over the plain and saw our troops flying in every direction. There was no firing, no enemy in sight, but evidently something was wrong; so I mounted my horse and rode to the scene of confusion, where I found that the ignominious flight of our troops was caused by infuriated bees, which had been disturbed by an officer of the Ninth lancers thoughtlessly thrusting a lance into their nest. There were no serious consequences, but the highlanders were heard to remark on the unsuitability of their dress for an encounter with an enemy of that description."

A Tinker Inspired Wagner.

A tinker has established himself opposite our house and stunned my ears all day long with his incessant hammering. In my disgust at never being able to find a detached house protected from every kind of noise I was on the point of deciding to give up composing altogether until the time when this indispensable condition should be fulfilled. But it was precisely my rage over the tinker that, in a moment of agitation, gave me the theme for Siegfried's furious outburst against the bungling Mime. I played over the childishly quarrelsome Polter theme in C minor to my sister, furiously singing the words at the same time, which made us all laugh so much that I decided to make one more effort. This resulted in my writing down a good part of the first scene by the time Liszt arrived, Oct. 13 (1856).—Richard Wagner in His Autobiography.

Recreation and Mental Disease.

The problem of fatigue and its relation to efficiency is becoming more and more appreciated in our industrial institutions, so much so, indeed, that we may truthfully say that, in the United States at least, the art of work is being mastered to a degree little short of perfection. Not so much can be said with reference to our mastery of the art of play. Let us not forget that the art of play presents an important problem which requires serious effort for its solution. Relaxation from the stress and tension of modern American city life means much for our future physical, mental and moral health and efficiency. This is a tired nation, perhaps the most tired nation on earth.—New York Medical Journal.

British Life Guards.

England's famous life guards were organized just after the restoration. They were recruited from the old cavaliers who fought for Prince Charles Stuart, and in 1661 they were formed into three troops, then known as the King's Own, the Duke of York's and the Duke of Albemarle's. At that time it was always demanded that one troop should be raised in Scotland in honor of the house of Stuart.—London Tit-Bits.

One Way to Use a Poultice.

"Did that onion poultice I sent you do you any good?"

"Did me a heap of good."

"These external applications are often efficacious."

"I applied it internally. The onions smelled so good that I ate it."—Kansas City Journal.

Horse Sense.

The phrase "horse sense" was discussed in class, and the teacher told one of the boys to write a sentence containing that phrase. The boy labored for ten minutes and produced this. "My father didn't lock the barn door, and he ain't seen the horse sense."

Peter the Great.

What Alfred the Great is to early Britain that Peter the Great is, in his crude way, is to Russia. If ever a race of people found adequate expression in one person that race was the Slavic race in their great czar.—Century Magazine.

Hardy Ants.

Ants can stand extremes of heat or cold. Forty-eight hours' exposure to frost will not kill them, and one sort has been observed to build its nest in the chinks in a blacksmith's forge.

Hope springs exulting on triumphant wing.—Burns.
